

Application to change an existing accredited program title

The Australian Psychology Accreditation Council Limited (APAC) is the accreditation authority for psychology programs in Australia. All programs accredited by APAC are assessed against the Accreditation Standards for Psychology Programs.

This form is for education providers to submit when changing the program title of an existing APAC accredited program of study.

If the content of the new program of study differs in any respect, e.g., variation to course structure, unit and course content, learning outcomes and assessments or the program is now being offered online for the first time, please contact APAC for advice as a review may be required.
